Definitions

Preexisting condition - (if applicable)- A condition, excluding genetic information or an existing pregnancy, that existed prior to your enrollment date and for which medical advice, diagnosis, care, or treatment was recommended or received.

Medically necessary - Health care services that are: (a) in accordance with generally accepted standards of medical practice; (b) clinically appropriate; (c) not primarily for the convenience of the patient or health care provider; and (d) not more costly than an alternative service.

Investigative - A drug, device, diagnostic procedure, technology, or medical treatment or procedure is investigative if reliable evidence does not permit conclusions concerning its safety, effectiveness, or effect on health outcomes.

Adverse Benefit Determination (ABD) - An ABD includes a denial, reduction, termination of or failure to make a payment for a benefit, or a rescission of coverage.

Complaint/Appeal Information-Your claim was processed based on the information submitted to us. You or your authorized representative may appeal an ABD. You must exhaust these appeal procedures before starting any legal action. You may have a limited time to file suit. Please check your plan documents.

You can see your plan details and claims by signing in to the website shown on the front of this form. If you still have questions, contact customer service. If you are not satisfied with the explanation, we will send a form for you to complete to file your complaint. If you need help, we will complete the form and mail it to you for your signature.

- You must file an appeal within 180 days following receipt of a notice of an ABD. Some plans allow a longer time. Your Plan documents contain appeal timelines and a complete description of the appeal process.
- You may review the claim file, present evidence and testimony, and submit written comments, documents, records, and other information relating to your claim. We will consider all submissions in making our decision.

We may use internal and external rules and guidelines to make an ABD. You have the right to ask for any relevant documents, records, or other information used to process your claim. You may ask for the scientific or clinical judgment used if your claim was denied because it was determined to be investigative or not medically necessary. We will send you this information free of charge upon request.

Further Appeals-You may be eligible for a further review of your appeal, (note; a filing fee may apply). The outcome notification letter will describe how to pursue your further appeal rights.

Please note: Upon exhaustion of the complaint/appeal process, members of group plans subject to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) have the right to file suit under section 502(a) of ERISA. If you are covered under a plan offered by the State Health Plan, a city, county, school district, or Service Coop, you may contact the Department of Health and Human Services Health Insurance Assistance Team at 888-393-2789.

If you are a member of a self-insured group plan, the medical plan is that of the employer. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Minnesota provides administrative claims payment services only and does not assume any financial risk or obligation with respect to claims.

- For hearing and speech impaired telephone access, call 711.
- Call the confidential hotline to report suspected fraud, misuse, abuse or waste of health care benefits at 1-800-382-2000 ext. 28363.
- If you have a medical spending account and enrolled in crossover, the amount you owe will be sent to your account administrator for processing. Your account administrator will notify you if you can not be reimbursed in full. You are responsible to pay any outstanding balance to your provider.
